

Sheep and Goats

Jesus told his disciples they were like sheep when they cared for each other, and Jesus was their shepherd. They would be like goats if they didn't listen and didn't care.

He said, "Do you remember when you fed the woman who was hungry?" "Yes," they replied.

"Do you remember when you visited the old man in prison?" he asked. "Oh, yes. He was lonely," they answered.

"Do you remember when you gave clothing to the children who didn't have anything to wear?" Jesus asked. "Yes, they were very cold," they remembered.

"Every time you care for someone, it is like you are caring for me too," Jesus explained.

“God will welcome you into the kingdom of heaven.”

The disciples wanted to be like sheep. They knew they would be welcome in heaven.
